For Dyspepsia, Constipation, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhea, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally constipated, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weakness and debility; nervous easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distracts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities. By taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Headaches, Depression of Spirits, etc. It is a pleasant and safe medicine, and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

If you have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE.

And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after-effects.

A Governor's Testimony.

Simmons' Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.

J. GILL SHORTELL, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: "I have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial."

"The only thing that never fails to relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons' Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.

F. M. JANNETT, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: "From actual experience in the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine."

A WOMAN SCORPED,

Hotly Pursues the Man Who Wronged Her.

Ben's Ret—Working for Harmony—

Unmasked—Rebuked—Going Duff—

A Modest President—Flight of Butterflies.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—While Henry C. DeWitt, a lawyer, who has an office at No. 306 Broadway, and who resides at No. 104 Reid avenue, Brooklyn, was walking with a lady through Madison Square Thursday evening, a young and richly dressed woman approached and barred his progress. He whispered to his companion, and she returned in the direction whence he had come. Then he suddenly ran away, and the young woman pursued, saying that she would kill him. Finally he took refuge in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and she disappeared.

Mr. DeWitt is about 35 years old, stout in appearance, with a prematurely bald head. He is a bachelor, and lives with his sisters in Brooklyn. When asked about his adventure he said, laughingly:

"She called Sarah E. Spencer, but her real name is Emily Thorne. I suppose she attacked me for the sake of becoming even more notorious than she already is. I first became acquainted with her some years ago, when she was my client. She had suit about an estate in England. Her statement, however, to me was so varied, to say the least, that I could be of very little service to her. She subsequently told me the story of her life. Her parents are English, and she came to this country when eight years of age. She was reared in a convent and afterwards resided at New Rochelle. She is 25 years of age now and still quite handsome. She was known as the belle of the village. While living in Rochelle she became the companion of a prominent member of the Union Club, who supported her and spent as much as $15,000 a year on her. He took her to Paris, where they lived among the gayest of the gay. They were accustomed to pass the summer in St. Augustine, Fla., and at one time she occupied sumptuous apartments in the Stevens House, on Fifth avenue, now known as the Victoria. Finally he cast her off. She then captivated the hearts of several other wealthy gentlemen, who squandered fortunes on her. She always was very extravagant; a thousand dollars generally lasted her about ten days. About last July she began to send me postal cards."

From a large package of postal cards, all dated from last July to about the 9th of September, Mr. DeWitt picked out a few. At first the missives are of a very affectionate nature. In one, addressed "Dear Beloved," she asks whether he does not miss his "little poppy-wee," and tells him not to mind, as she will be with him soon. In conclusion, Mr. DeWitt denied that he had ever regarded the woman as his wife or introduced her as such to any one.

A petite figure, robed in modest black, her pale face flushed with nervous excitement, somewhat haggard from recent illness, but still beautiful, received the writer in a luxurious boudoir at No. 109 Fourth avenue. She was Emily Thorne. "My past life is a secret," she said, as her brown eyes filled with tears. "Up to the day when Henry C. DeWitt, knowing what I was, took me from the life I was leading and introduced me to his friends and acquaintances as his wife, there is nothing for you to know. We lived in several places, and when we moved here he gave his name as Mr. Spencer to Mr. Davenport, who keeps this boarding-house. I believed he loved me, and in the love I hoped to be able to break forever with my past. Last July I first began to suspect that his affection for me was waning. I met him in the company of others and reproached him. I bitterly realized that my money was all gone, that I was ill and losing my attractiveness. I told him to leave me. That was on a Tuesday night. I told him to take me out to dinner the following Friday. We would have a pleasant evening together and then we would separate forever. The Friday came and he remained away. I may have done wrong, but I could not help it, no more than I could help my attacking him last night. I saw him in the company of another. I don't remember having threatened to kill him; I was so wild I don't know what I said. I am neither an adventurer nor a blackmailer. I want none of his money. I despise and scorn him now, and my actions towards him are prompted only by a spirit of retaliation." She sighed deeply as she concluded: "I have no money, no friends. My mother died. My father in England will not receive me. I will drift back into the life from which I hoped I had forever escaped."

Mr. Joshua Davenport, Jr., the boarding-house keeper, said that Mr. DeWitt had introduced himself as Mr. Spencer, and the lady as his wife. He had not the slightest knowledge of such a woman, and until he was obliged to prevent Mr. DeWitt a bill of $45 for the woman's board.

Hanging Would be too Good for Them.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—Monday night of last week two young men, named respectively Charles Reed and Geo. Bradley, called upon Deacon Collins and wife, an aged couple living near the outskirts of North Guilford. Both were intoxicated, and, as they entered the house, said in a loud voice, that they had come for fun and proposed to have it. They blew out the lamp and then began throwing the furniture around the room, breaking it to pieces, and also to hit the old lady with pillows. Suddenly they seized her, dragged her through the kitchen and out into the ground. Mrs. Collins is 55 years old and was unable to make any resistance, and a deaf ear and mercilessly assaulted her. Upon regaining consciousness Mrs. Collins told who had been her assailants, and Reed was at once arrested. Bradley could not be found until Thursday afternoon, when he was captured by Sheriff Hart. To-day they were brought before Justices Hull and Guilford and were bound over.

Ward's Statue of Washington.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The work of constructing the pedestal for Ward's statue of Washington, which is to be placed at the head of the steps of the sub-treasury, where the first President was inaugurated on April 30, 1789, is being pushed rapidly. The first stone, a 14-foot marble slab two feet thick, was delivered yesterday and placed in position, with the inscription, "WASHINGTON, 1789-1800."

Leading His Hind.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—L. P. Hitchcock, late senior partner in the firm of Hitchcock & McCreery, grain merchants, was found by his friends to-day at the Central Hotel. He left his home on Anderson avenue, Shady-side, on Monday last without telling any one where he was going. For the last three years he has not crossed his own threshold, and for a longer time, so he said, nothing but his early career had seemed to interest him. When spoken to to-day it was evident that his mind was far away. He wears a closely cropped white beard and has a very aristocratic and intelligent appearance. He said he was deeply interested in the attention which the papers have been paying to him, but was very certain that he was not about to lose himself. He had not had time to try to induce him to return home, but he had refused, and this was the first subject mentioned to him. He seemed to forget the question, or to avoid it, and most adroitly led the way to his early life. He has had a checkered career, and few citizens in Pittsburgh are better known than Mr. Hitchcock. When asked what he intended to do, he said: "I do not know. I may go to Carlyle, Ill., or may go to Quincy, Ill. I had thought also of going to Somerset, in this state, but I may stay here. The trouble is the Pennsylvania railroad company is about to take a lot of my ground at Shady-side to build a new station on. It stands now $5,500 per acre, and it worries me to have my beautiful grounds broken up. This appears to be his hallucination. It is probable that his relatives will compel him to go home, and place the gentleman where his diseased mind can do no harm."

Working for Harmony.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The candidates on the Democratic ticket for state officers have decided that it is of the utmost importance that the factions in the city shall be united at the coming election. Mr. Isaac H. Maynard and Robert A. Maxwell, the nominees for Secretary of State and State Treasurer, arrived in New York yesterday. During the day they called upon Mr. Kelly, Commissioner of Public Works, Thompson, Sheriff Davidson and other leaders of Tammany Hall, the county Democracy and Irving Hall organizations. Both Mr. Maynard and Mr. Maxwell talked of the necessity for harmony in the city. They urged in strong terms the throwing aside of all jealousy and factional feeling between the organizations. Mr. Maynard told the leaders that, while there is no doubt that the state ticket will be elected, yet a fight among the local Democrats would tend to demoralize the party outside of New York county. The rural Democrats always felt more confident and came to the polls in large numbers when there was a union in this city. Mr. Maxwell spoke in the same vein at the interviews held. Mr. Maynard, in speaking to a correspondent, said that it was true that he and Mr. Maxwell were in the city on a harmony mission. The prominent Democrats in all parts of the state, he said, were unanimous in their opinion that Tammany Hall, county Democracy and Irving Hall should unite on county and district nominations. He further said that from the talks he had already held with the leaders of the various factions, he felt assured that there would be a union.

A Libertine Unmasked.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—John H. Austin, aged 42, was arraigned before police justice James M. Davis, in Jersey City, yesterday, on a charge of wife abandonment, preferred by his wife. He was in the company of a young woman when arrested. He seemed to regard his arrest as a joke but when Chief of Police Murphy placed upon the Judge's desk a bundle of love letters which had been found by Mrs.
